

W. L. Garrison,

Dear friend,

89

I heard from our friend Wendell Phillips per the Britannia. He has given me the agreeable commission of conveying to you his thanks for the naming of your child. As I know not when I might have the pleasure of doing it in person I will comply with his request by transcribing for you his words. What shall I say to W. L. G.'s touching mark of kindly feeling in giving his little one my name. Shall I ask you to thank him for this new token of his love and let the little one tell some one returns to do it. Perhaps I owe it to the fact of being happy enough (which I owe to your letter) of being the first in London to tell him of his birth.

My letter was from Leyhorn Jan. 21st, whither they had gone, that Ann might feel the invigorating sea-breeze.

I need hardly form a better wish for the young Wendell than that he may resemble him for whom he is named.

With my love to Mrs Garrison, I am yours sincerely,

Mary G. Chapman.
